HINES FAMILY OF BUTLER AND WARREN COUNTIES, KENTUCKY DESCENDANTS OF HENRY HINES, SR.

FIRST GENERATION

Thomas Hines d. 1743 md. Eliz. Jones

Thomas Hines was a Scotch physician & army surgeon who came to America in 1745 w/ Brit army. He settled near Hobbs Hole VA & there md. Eliz. Jones.

- (1) HENRY HINES, SR., the father of the Hines family which settled between the years 1803 and 1820 in Warren and Butler Counties, Kentucky, was born ^{18 Dec} 1732 in Campbell Co, VA and died in Charlotte Co, VA in 1810. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, as was his brother James Hines, who died in service. Henry Hines, Sr., a prosperous planter, first married Dorcus Kelly, also of Campbell County. By this marriage there were six sons and three daughters. After her death, he married ^{@ 1795} Elizabeth Harvey, b. 03 Oct 1781 Char. Co. Va. & d. Jan 1823 Boyle Co. moved to Charlotte Co, Virginia, and had two sons and two daughters. After Henry's death, she married second Lewis Jackson. (Walton) ^{Barbara} ^{Harvey} All the children by his first marriage settled in the western part of Warren County, except Tobitha Hines, who married Thomas Parsons and settled in northern Kentucky, and Elizabeth Hines, who married John H. Puckett and settled in Butler County. The four children by the second marriage all settled in Butler County, Kentucky. All of the sons were above the average height, most of them over six feet and all had (as did the daughters) a good English education. The descendants of these thirteen children are scattered over many states of the union and number many hundreds.

- (2) JOHN HINES, son of Henry, Sr. and Dorcas (Kelly) Hines (1), was born in Campbell Co, VA, 21 October 1771 and died in Warren Co, KY, 30 July 1853. He married first on 19 March 1795 in Charlotte Co, VA, Sarah Davis, born ca 1779, and died 1819, the daughter of Temple Davis, Sr., of Culpeper Co, VA. He then married his first wife's widowed sister, Nancy (Davis) Herald, who was born in Virginia ca 1788. John, the first of the family to migrate to Kentucky, came with his family in 1803 through Cumberland Gap over the old Wilderness Road and settled on the waters of Gasper River, thirteen miles west of Bowling Green, Kentucky. He lived a number of years in this locality, eventually moving to what is now known as the Ches Wiley Place on the east bank of Gasper River, where he built a saw and gristmill, known for many years as Hines Mill. He prospered greatly, was unusually successful and accumulated a large fortune. He was sheriff of Warren County for several years and was a large tobacco planter with about 3,000 acres of land and over 100 slaves. He wrote an excellent hand, and the deeds, contracts and other legal papers that have been preserved show that he was a man much above the average in business attainments. He was a member of the Methodist Church, as were all of his brothers and sisters. He served as a major in the War of 1812 and was transferred from the 61st Regiment, 20th Brigade to the 25th Regt. on 16 January 1815. *Written by James Davis Hines, grandson of

John Hines (son of Henry Hines Sr.)*

Written in 1911 by James D. Hines,
Son of James D. Hines, Sr. and
Elizabeth M. Davis-at Bowling Green, Kentucky.

Between 1803 and 1820 there were thirteen sons and daughters of Henry Hines, Sr. of Campbell County and later of Charlotte County, Virginia, who came to Kentucky, most of them having married before they moved.

Henry Hines, Sr. was of Scotch Irish extraction.

The first wife of Henry Hines, Sr. was Dorcas Kelly, and by this union there were nine children to wit: John, William, Tobitha, Henry, Jr., James, Mary, Thomas, Elizabeth and Kelly. These children were born and reared in Campbell County, Va.

His second wife was Elizabeth Harvey, and to them were born four children, to wit: Simeon, Barbara, Nancy, and Walton. These were born and reared in Charlotte County, Va., where Henry Hines, Sr. lived the latter part of his life, and died then in October 1810, at a ripe old age.

He was a farmer by occupation as was his father before him, and was a man of fine physique, being over six feet in height, and of great muscular strength. He was an athlete, being fleet on foot, and was noted when a young man for being able to stand flat footed in an empty tobacco hogshead, and jump out without touching it. He was also fond of horse racing, for hunting, and hunting for wild game, with which the country around him was well stocked. He was a soldier in the revolutionary army, and among the traditions handed down is one that during his long absence in the army his wife, Dorcas Kelly Hines, being a woman of fine executive ability, managed affairs on the farm so that when the war ended, their financial condition had been considerably bettered, the family living in a section that was not ravaged by the armies of either side.

Though he reared a large family, having thirteen children to reach maturity, he gave them all a good English education and left a considerable estate.

He married his second wife Elizabeth Harvey about the year 1800, as Simeon, the first child by this union, was born in 1802.

The following is a letter written by Henry Hines, Sr., not long before he died, to his son, John Hines, in Warren County, Ky. where he had moved in 1803.

Charlotte, Va., 20th, June, 18.

Capt. John Hines,
Warren County, Ky.

Dear Son,

It is not without some degree of emotion that I once more find myself spired to inform you that I am yet in being prompt with a flattering hope of recovery. I have suffered much with both pain and confinement for these four or five months past, but thank God am now in some measure relieved, possessing a fond hope that yourself and the other members of my children and family are enjoying health and happiness.

I wish you to inform me of the standing of my affairs under your direction, and if you have any money to contrive so that I get it, as I feel an intention to see Kentucky next fall; if life and strength permit; when, if I like, shall endeavor to get the balance of my family there also. The illfate which I have undergone recently (in law suits) has reduced me to a straight for money, and hope you will use your best endeavor to accumulate to me what may be due.

I have nothing entertaining or uncommon to detail, only we have a gloomy prospect for a crop and are extremely dry, but few people have pitched their crops of tobacco as yet.

There is a great stir among the people of this time for to make out the answer the Bonds Suspending Executions- the produce is at a very good price, say corn $5. Tob. $7, Flour $7, and so on in proportion.

To hear from you all would add to the relief of your afflicted father.

Henry Hines, Sr.

He never came to Kentucky, as he expressed a desire to do in the foregoing letter, he having died within a few months after it was written. There seems to have been a contest over the will between the children of the first wife and the widow, as is shown by the following letter written by James Hines at Charlotte, Va., to his brother Henry Hines, Jr. in Warren County, Ky., as follows:

"Charlotte Virginia, Sept. 22" 1813

Mr. Henry Hines
Warren County, Kentucky

Attention of W. Wheeler

Dear Brother:

I have seen Mr. William Wheeler who handed me a letter from brother John which informed me that you are all well- (except brother William's wife), thank God for his mercies. This leaves myself and family, together with friends in gener in a state of tolerable health.

I am almost at a loss to know what to write you, as I have not received your letter by Mr. Wheeler, he through accident having left all my letters (except brother John's) in Bedford County. However, I expect your greatest solicitude will be to know about the affairs of the Estate, as I expect you have heard before that I have administered (at July court last). After getting the will set aside have got a decree to the court to sell the negroes-Commissioners appointed in this state and Kentucky for that purpose, also to divide the land and proceeds of the estate.

I purpose selling the negroes about New Year's Day (agreeable to the decree of the court), on 12 months credit. I could not get the credit shorter. About the time the negroes are sold I purpose having the land divided, and I think the whole estate could be as well divided then as afterwards, as the Bonds may all be in place, and if the division is made 12 months afterwards, the Bonds will still to be divided, for I expect very little of the money will be collected in that time; and if the legatees are anxious to get their part of the estate in hand immediately, they had better buy them a negro apiece, and if they do not wish to have negroes they can sell them for money. I suppose the estate will be worth nearly $400.00 to each legatee, including what they have had, exclusive of land.

Brother Thomas wrote me in June last that he was well, and intended to be in about Christmas with a load of cotton- and to load back with manufactured tobacco and some articles of foreign merchandise.

I leave the time of the division to be fixed by you legatees that are in Kentucky, as the court does not take cognizance of that point, and it is a matter of indifference to me.

I can say this much, you will not have money to divide by waiting no longer than 12 months.

I have no news respecting the war. The British made a little attack on Craney Island, and were repulsed with considerable slaughter: They landed and burned a small town called Hampton near Norfolk, in which the ladies of the town were said to have suffered much from the brutal treatment of the British soldiers-let loose for that purpose by their commander.

I am attached to a volunteer rifle Company, stand No. and expect to have to go the next requisition, which I suppose will be next spring or sooner. I feel only distressed for my unprotected family which I shall leave subject to the outrages of an internal enemy.

If I am have discharged my duty and made my calling and election sure with God in Christ-I am content to share my fate and trust to his mercy and providence. And dear brother if we never meet on earth, let us prepare to meet in the Paradise of God where there is no parting, and from whence there is no return.

Yours without reserve.

Jas. Hines,"

"N.B. Caroline joins me in love to you all."

I have had no account from you whether Mr. Adams has paid you the money I sent you by him, which was L 19..13.

J.H."

John Hines is said to have attended the sale alluded to in the above letter, having ridden all the way from Ky. to Va. horseback, there then being no other means of communication and to have brought back with him to Kentucky, two small negro boys, one in front and the other behind him.

The widow, Elizabeth Harvey Hines, with her four children, Simeon the oldest then being fourteen years of age, moved to Boyle County, Ky. in 1816, and after her death the children moved to Butler County, Ky, where many of their relatives lived.

Of the thirteen children mentioned above, seven of them, to wit: John, William, Henry, Jr., James, Mary, Thomas and Kelly settled in Warren County, Ky; five of them to wit: Elizabeth, Simeon, Barbara, Nancy and Walton, settled in Butler County, Ky. and Tobitha the oldest daughter, who married Thomas Parsons, located in Central Ky.

John Hines, the oldest son, with his wife and four children, came to Kentucky in 1803. He was born Oct. 21, 1771, and married Sarah Davis, daughter of Temple Davis, Sr. of Culpepper County, Va., March 19, 1795. They came in a wagon train through Cumberland Gap, and over the Wilderness Road until out of the mountains, when they turned their course westward.

Judge Pleasant Hines, the oldest son, then about five years old, has been heard to tell that when they stopped for the noon day meal in the valley near the town where Smith Grove is now located, he hurried through his dinner so that he could gather the wild strawberries growing so abundantly in the vast prairie around them.

Having gathered his hat full, he sat it in one of the numerous paths, and proceeded to gather the finest of this luscious fruit and eat his fill. When the signal was given for the wagon train to start, he looked for and failed to find his hat and strawberries, and to his sorrow was compelled to leave them, and hasten to the moving train.

Late that afternoon they reached Bowling Green, a straggling little village situated on Barren river at the foot of State Street, the Colored Public School building being now located on what was then the Public Square.

The town was later moved to its present site about a mile to the Southwest, on account of several large springs in that vicinity.

Extending from the Northern part of Barren County, through Simpson, Logan, Todd, and Christian Counties, on to the Cumberland river, was a valley several miles in width, on which there were no trees, except a fringe along the water courses. From Bowling Green to Franklin, Ky. there was not a tree to be seen and the same was true in regard to the country between Bowling Green and Brownsville in Edmonson Co., Ky. A large part of this vast prairie of many millions of acres was covered with the vines of the wild strawberries and no doubt it was the largest strawberry patch ever known to the world. When the berries were ripe, the cows which roamed this pasture, would return at night with their legs stained red to their knees; and when the physicians, whose calls took them out in the prairie, returned to their homes, their horses legs were colored a bright red. That the soil of this valley is peculiarly adapted to the growth of this magnificent fruit is well proven by the splendid berries Warren and the adjoining counties are now putting on the market each spring, they commanding a premium over most of the strawberries offered for sale.

These prairie lands were called the "Barrens" on account of the absence of timber, and the first settlers chose the timber lands because there were plenty of materials out of which to build houses and barns, and construct rail fences.

Besides this, in the hilly and timbered lands lying to the east and west of this prairie, there were many beautiful streams well stocked with splendid fish; the woods were full of wild game; there was a bountiful yearly crop of mast; and the bottoms were filled with succulent young cane on which cattle fattened rapidly. By But now, these same "Barren" lands are worth from five to ten times as much as those timbered lands, once selected in preference.

This valley is some two hundred or more feet below the level of the hill lands on each side of it, and the theory of geologists is that the erosion caused by the melting of ice at the end of the ice age, millions of years ago perhaps, gradually scooped out this valley. It has a red clay sub soil and the soil is very fertile. After the strawberries in the old time, came a dense crop of coarse-tall prairie grass, on which fed and thrived the buffalo and the deer. Late in the fall this grass ripened, and being set afire nearly every year by the hunters, the growth of all trees was prevented. This was shown by the fact that as soon as the autumnal fires were stopped by the settlers, trees of many varieties began to spring up on these "Barren" lands. Barren County and Barren river no doubt got their names from these so called "Barren" lands.

This section of the state, in fact all of Ky., except a strip in the extreme western part bordering on the Mississippi river, was not occupied permanently by the Indians, they using it only as a hunting ground. The Indians from north of the Ohio river, and from the southern states both visited Ky. on their hunting expeditions, and generally when they met, there was a fierce battle, each tribe resenting the inroad of the other, on what is regarded as its game preserve. There is abundant evidence that this country was occupied several centuries before the advent of the whites, by a race of people called Mound Builders. Their burial places are found over a large section of southern Ky. shown by the large mounds of earth scattered over the country. It is said that these people were large of structure and were a peaceful non-warlike race. When the northern and southern tribes began to widen their forays for game, this race, unaccustomed to warfare, were eventually annihilated.

John Hines camped the evening he reached Bowling Green under a large tree on the lot now occupied by Mr. Arch Wilkins, west corner of the intersection of Center and Fourth St. The next morning before breakfast he killed a deer with his rifle. Wending his way he reached his destination that afternoon on the west side of Gasper river in Warren County, about thirteen miles from Bowling Green. He lived here a few years, and then bought property on the east side of Gasper at what is now known as the Chas. Wiley place. Here he built a grist and saw mill and dam, and laid the foundation for the fortune that he eventually accumulated. After a few years in which, besides running his mill, he carried on large agricultural operations, he purchased a mill from Col. Marshall several miles further up Gasper, which he operated extensively. This was long known as Hines' mill, and is now known as Galloway's mill. Here he lived until he died in 1853 in his eighty third year. He was a man of strong intellect and fine executive capacity, as is shown by the fact of his settling in a part of the country where the lands were not very fertile, and where there was but little money; but notwithstanding these handicaps he accumulated a large fortune for his time. When he died he owned over 100 negroes, and some two or three thousand acres of land, his estate being worth over one hundred thousand dollars. Early in the last century he was sheriff of the county, the law then being that the oldest magistrate in time of service was entitled to that position. As a rule the magistrates sold their privilege, which the law permitted, but John Hines elected to discharge the duties himself, which he did with credit to himself and to the official position he ever filled. He was a consistent member of the Methodist Church, as were all his brothers and sisters, and at his home there was a large room on the ground floor, called the Methodist preacher's room, and it was often occupied for months at a time. He married the second time, his first wife having died several years before, the widow Nancy Herald, a sister of his first wife. This was not long before his death.

Jas. D. Hines, John H. Hines, Thomas H. Hines, Jas. M. Hines and Edward L. Hines belonged to Gen. John H. Morgan's command of Ky. Cavalry, a command that captured sixteen thousand federal prisoners during the war, and was composed of a fine a body of young men--the average age was less than twenty-five--as ever wore the gray. There was hardly a prominent or leading family in the state which did not have one or more representatives in this command. Many of them in the ranks. As an evidence of their ability and high standing many of the offices in the state from Governor and U. S. Senator down, have been filled by Morgan's men. In fact for many years they held almost a monopoly of the State and County offices, and in nearly every case filled them with signal ability. How this Warren County has rewarded them will be shown by the following list.

But to go back to the war record of the members of the Hines family*-----

Thomas H. Hines became a member of the Buckner Guides, in the fall of 1861 while Gen. Albert Sidney Johnson occupied Bowling Green, Ky. This command was organized for the purpose of doing scouting in Ky. for Gen. Johnson's army.

Henry Hester's will - admitted to probate by F. R. [unclear]

After the battle of Shiloh, in which the Guides took an active part, the members were honorably discharged and most of them joined Gen. John H. Morgan's Command. He joined Company D 2nd. Ky. Cav. of then Col. John H. Morgan's regiment, it being in process of formation, with his already renounced squadron of three companies, as a basis.

Company D was commanded by Capt. John B. Castleman, the same who was promoted to a Brigadier General in the Volunteer Army during the Spanish-American War. During the Civil War he was promoted to the rank of Major.

About this time Jas. D. Hines, Henry C. Hines, John H. Hines, Edward L. Hines and Jas. M. Hines--the first two being brothers; the second two being brothers also, and the last one, Jas. M. Hines, being a brother of Thos. H. Hines, all related. This was at Chattanooga, Tenn. In a few weeks thereafter came Morgan's July raid, 1862, into Ky., starting from Knoxville, Tenn. By this time the command numbered about six hundred men. There was a small fight at Tompkinsville, Monroe County, in which the writer of this received his baptism of fire. He was very uneasy for fear Company D would not get into the fight; and after refreshing his memory in regard to the many battles and skirmishes in which he participated before the war ended, he has no recollection of even being as anxious to get into a fight as he was that time.

At Lebanon, Ky. we had a little night fight--A couple of companies of federal troops,--Germans and some Home Guards interposing themselves between us and the city as we approached at eleven o'clock at night. They were soon captured, and the loss was small, our command having no casualties. It was the writers first visit to the Blue Grass Country, and the contrast between the mountains of Eastern Ky. and the beautiful valley of Central Ky. with its fields of gold and green--its handsome residences and finely McAdamized roads, was so great, that it seemed almost we were in the garden of Eden.

There were some other skirmishes, when Morgan returned to the Confederate lines, after having secured several hundred recruits, really his main object.

Morgan's command again entered Ky. in Sept. 1862, when Gen. Bragg pursued Gen. Buell into the state and let him elude him near Bowling Green, Ky. and Gen. Kirby Smith invaded Central Ky., and won a brilliant victory at Richmond or Big Hill. Morgan's command by this time had grown much larger and before he left the state in Oct. 1862, he had twenty five hundred men. It has some skirmishing in front of Gen. Kirby Smith's army while it was threatening Cincinnati, Ohio, but no fights of importance.

Gen. Morgan made a forced march to reach Gen. Bragg's command before the battle of Perryville, but the battle ended just before he arrived. That October night in 1862 the writer of this awoke in the middle of the night, and after listening awhile, he aroused his companions and said to him, "Gen. Bragg is retreating from the state." The rumbling of the artillery over the McAdamized roads could be plainly heard. By early daylight we were in our saddles and with saddened hearts were protecting the rear of the Confederate Army as it marches toward big hill on its retreat out of the state. The enemy under Gen. Buell did not pursue vigorously and our task was not an arduous one. At Gunn Spring the enemy had ceased to pursue us; and after preparing three days ration, we started on a forced march of that day and all night, and at daylight we were at Lexington, Ky., and were soon formed into a line of battle. The evening before two regiments of Federal Cavalry, the third and fourth Ohio, had arrived and gone into camp in a woodland on Henry Clay's residence near the city. They were utterly unexpected us, and the first they knew of our presence was a volley poured into their camp from two sides. They surrendered at once without firing a gun. This was the second time we had captured the fourth Ohio. Morgan then continued his march west through Bloomington, Elizabethtown, Litchfield, Morgantown, Hopkinsville and on to Gallatin, Tenn., making an entire circuit of Buell's Army.

But the brilliant career of Gen. John H. Morgan is too extensive to get into a history like this and I will merely give an outline of it from this on. One of his most brilliant exploits was the capture of twenty two hundred infantry and six pieces of cannon at Hartsville, Tenn. with seventeen hundred men, part infantry and part cavalry. As there were six thousand Federals camped within six miles of Hartsville, he knew he had only two hours from the opening of the battle, in which to capture this force and get them south of the Cumberland river, before these nearby Federalists would attack him. It was a cold December night in 1862 when his men crossed the Cumberland river, and having silently moved in position, at daylight suddenly attacked the unsuspecting enemy and had then whipped after a short but furious battle. The rescuing army of the Federals only arrived in time to fire on the rear guard of the Confederates as it was crossing the river.

It was but a few days after this remarkable exploit, before he again started for Ky., on what is called his December raid, 1862, in which expedition he had over thirty-three hundred men, the greatest force he had ever commanded before or ever commanded afterwards, as soon after that the Confederate authorities ordered some of his regiment to other commands.

When General Morgan was in Ky. in Sept. 1862, Thos. H. Hines got permission to raise a company which he did mainly in Central Ky. By permission of Capt. Castleman a number of men belonging to his Company from Warren County, Ky. joined Capt. Thos. H. Hines' Company, which formed a part of Col. W. O. P. Breckenridge's regiment. Among the number were E. L. Hines who became first lieutenant of said company. James M. Hines who became the commissary of the regiment, and Henry C. Hines. This left John H. Hines second lieutenant, and James D. Hines members of Company D commanded by Capt. John B. Castleman.

But to go back to the December raid 1862. Gen. Morgan captured many prisoners and much valuable government property, and had some fights at Elizabethtown, Rolling Fork, etc. At one time he was surrounded by fifteen thousand Federals, but he skillfully eluded them and made his escape.

His next important military move was the Ohio raid in July 1863. We crossed the Cumberland river at Barksville, Ky., and the first conflict was at Green river bridge on July 4th. The enemy had a strong position in a stockade surrounded almost by a band in the river, the shape of a horse shoe. This opening was covered from bank to bank by chevaux de frise in front of breastworks, the stockade in the rear and was almost impregnable except to artillery but the configuration of the ground was such that artillery could not be brought to bear on it. General Morgan, thinking it commanded the only ford by which we could cross the river, determined to storm the fort. An attack was made and was repulsed with considerable loss. Gen. Morgan was preparing to make the second attack, and the second Ky., his old regiment was being formed preparatory to making the charge, when he found there was another ford not far away.

At Lebanon, Ky. we had a spirited little fight with a regiment of Federals Infantry Command by Col. Chas. Hanson who had thrown themselves in the brick R. R. depot, and refused to surrender. Gen. Morgan had placed his men to storm the depot when the enemy surrendered. In this fight Gen. Morgan had a young brother, Lieutenant Thos. Morgan, killed. On the 8th of July the command, having captured two large Ohio river steamers, the Alice Deane and McCoombs, at Brandenburg, Ky., forty miles below Louisville on the Ohio river, crossed into Indiana, the force numbering twenty seven hundred men. There was considerable skirmishing but no heavy fighting until Buffington Island was reached on the night of July 18. There was a large force of Federals hanging on his rear, some three or four times his number, and Gen. Morgan fully intended to cross the river that night, but finding it had risen two feet, he concluded to wait until daylight, for fear of losing a number of his men by being drowned. As the command was preparing to cross at daylight, the enemy attacked in heavy force, and Gen. Morgan seeing there was danger of his whole command being surrounded and captured, cut his way out with about a third of the command and escaped. Troops from all quarters were sent in pursuit, and after a chase of several days he was eventually surrounded and captured in eastern Ohio near the Pennsylvania line. Gen. Morgan and some of his officers, among them Capt. Thos. H. Hines were imprisoned in the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio.

In November 1863 a daring plan of escape was arranged and managed by Capt. Hines, by which Gen. Morgan and six of his Captains escaped and succeeded in reaching Kentucky in safety.

Gen. Morgan and Capt. Hines went together and eventually made their way to the confederate lines.

About two weeks before the escape of Gen. Morgan and his six officers, four of Gen. Morgan's command escaped from Camp Douglass, a military prison at Chicago, Ill. Among them was Jas. D. Hines who made his way to the Confederate lines, and eventually reached the remnant of Gen. Morgan's command in S. W. Virginia; after riding horseback from Uniontown, Ky., through west Ky., west Tennessee, Northern Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, S. Carolina, N. Carolina and S. W. Virginia, at Abingdon. Here he found Gen. Morgan in command of those of his men who had escaped capture or joined him recently, or who had escaped from northern war prisons, numbering in all about seven hundred and fifty men.

Major Webber of the 2nd. Ky. Cav., Morgan's old regiment, and after Gen. Morgan's promotion to the rank of Brig. Gen., known as Duke's regiment, commanded the battalion of about one hundred and twenty-five men organized into three companies.

These were what were left of the thousand men who belonged to the gallant 2nd. Ky. Cav.

Jas. D. Hines was soon made sergeant major of the battalion and then adjutant with the rank of first lieutenant. Gen. Hohn C. Breckinridge commanded the department of East Tenn. and had another small brigade of Cavalry under his command, Gen. Vaughn's. With this small body of men, he had a frontier of several hundred miles to protect and the duty was very arduous. There were long marches and occasional skirmishes or fights with the enemy. On the morning of Sept. 22, 1864, Gen. Morgan's little brigade camped around at Greenville East Tenn., having arrived there the night before.

Gen. Morgan and his staff had headquarters at the residence of Mrs. Williams in the corporate limits. He had no body guard and the nearest command to him was the battery of four pieces of artillery camped one third of a mile away. The six battalions composing the brigade were camped on different roads in front of Greenville, from one to two miles away. The enemy under Gen. Gillem were camped at Bulls Gap some twelve miles away, about twenty five hundred in number. Securing information of Gen. Morgan's unprotected condition, and being familiar with the country around Greenville, many of the Federals having been born and reared among its hills and valleys, Gen. Gillem's command was able to avoid the Confederate pickets, and have his whole force in line of battle near the town, while one hundred men dashed in and surrounded Gen. Morgan and his staff.

Hi Pat,

It was so nice to talk with you. Thanks so much for your time, and here I am asking for more of it. This is what I need - that I can think of now, anyway.

Any Kinslow marriage - I already have the one for John P. Kinslow to Eliza Meek and the one for Cecilia Kinslow to Francis M. Dearing - by the way, she was a widow and her maiden name was Gott.

And these -

Rufus Harlow to Isabel Manley/Manly, 1850-1857, his second marriage

Gabriel G. Manley to Elizabeth Manley, ca. 1862 - they were in Reedyville area 1870 No record

John James Osborne to Mary Manley, ca. 1862

Reuben B. Osborne to Nancy Manley, ca. 1856 28 Nov 1855 by Redman; S: Jonathan Manley
[B-31; D-95]

Do you still have copies of your 1860 census available, and if so, how much?

Thank you so much for your help.

Pat,

Just thought of another one - this one is sticky - Emma Kinslow Neal Goodwin to a Carter. She had been widowed and then deserted - I suppose she got a divorce from the Goodwin. who knows? The Goodwin marriage was in 1890 - got that from your Longhunter records. She was married to him long enough to have two children.

- b. Henry Hines (1), Sr; b 18 Dec 1832; m/1 Dorcas Kelly, m/2 Elizabeth Harvey.

FIRST GENERATION

- (1) HENRY HINES, SR, son of Thomas & Elizabeth (Jones) Hines, was a prosperous planter and the father of the Hines family which settled between the years 1803 and 1820 in Warren and Butler Counties, Kentucky. He was born 18 December 1732 in Campbell Co, VA and died in Charlotte Co, VA in 1810. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He married first Dorcas Kelly, also of Campbell County. By this marriage there were six sons and three daughters. After her death, he married ca 1793 Elizabeth Harvey, born 03 October 1781, Charlotte Co VA and died January 1823 in Boyle County, the daughter of Thomas and Barbara (Walton) Harvey. They moved to Charlotte County and had two sons and two daughters. After Henry's death Elizabeth married second Lewis Jackson. All the children by his first marriage settled in the western part of Warren County, Kentucky, except Tobitha, who settled in northern Kentucky and Elizabeth who settled in Butler County. The four children by the second marriage all settled in Butler County, Kentucky. All of the sons were above the average height, most of them over six feet and all had (as did the daughters) a good English education. The descendants of these thirteen children are scattered over many states of the union and number many hundreds.
